The choices you make at home and at the market can have a positive influence on your family's health and our environment.

Join us for a discussion with New York City based author and sustainability expert Jamie Cloud of The Cloud Institute for Sustainability Education who will help us make sense of the confusing information out there, and guide us in understanding which choices have the most impact.

- Tours of Willow's LEED Certified Green Buildings
- Exploration Stations where you will discover important — and sometimes surprising — facts about composting, nutrition, water and common household products.
